Features: - Chat from anywhere on the Internet, even if the sender doesn't have an iWebcam application - Send files, photos, videos and voice messages - Add unlimited users to your group chat - View and send webcams - Voice chat via webcam support - Private and public rooms - Multi-column chat tables - Add, manage and delete groups - Password protection - Option to exclude users from receiving your chat messages - Unicode support - Read and write rich text messages - Show who's online and unread messages - Automatic logout While you are logged in, iWebcam keeps you informed of new messages. Every page opens a notification bar, thus letting you know when a new message has been sent or received. If there are unread messages waiting for you, click the arrow to view them. Click the title to change your chat room into a video or audio chat room. You can then start a video broadcast with an audio track if required. You can read or write rich text messages and manage your groups. Give instructions to your participants by marking their photo in their chat window. Change your status by clicking the gear icon to lock your chat window. In this way, you won't lose your place, and users can no longer see your last messages. You can send a voice message to all your users with a maximum time limit of one minute. Users who have the video function enabled can easily see your webcam feed. iWebcam

Replaces your webcam with your own instant messaging program. In addition to having the ability to chat with a user, you can also record yourself and upload the recording to a user. This is accomplished by connecting your webcam to your computer using a USB cable and then selecting a webcam using the up-down arrows to choose which one you want to use. Now when you want to send a message to another user, you can click on the icon to quickly join the chat. However, if the other user is currently not online, a warning message will appear. When you want to end the chat, you simply click on the X button to the right. [Clinical review of 72 patients with congenital heart disease]. To investigate the clinical features and diagnosis and treatment for congenital heart disease. The patients with congenital heart disease were retrospectively analyzed. The patients with congenital heart disease were mainly distributed in the pediatric department and mostly occurred in 3-5 years old children, and the percentage of boys was higher than that of girls. The left ventricle had the highest detection rate, followed by the right ventricle, the aorta and the tricuspid valve. Among the causes of congenital heart disease, the ventricular septal defect accounted for the largest proportion. Echocardiography is the first choice of examination for screening of congenital heart disease, and cardiac catheterization with angiography can be chosen for the diagnosis and to decide the surgical procedures.Welcome!
